1. The rebuilt single-track railroad bridge at Komarom was opened to traffic on 28 December 1954. The purpose for building this bridge was twofold:

2. Another passenger train, a part of the Baltic-Orient Express, is to connect Prague and Budapest.

3. Hungarian bauxite, because of the serious shortages in coal and electric power, is to be processed in increasing quantities in Czechoslovakia and East Germany. The bridge at Komarom will relieve the congestion prevailing on the Szob-Prague railroad line.
